

< Entrance Ceremony of the graduate school for students in Asia International Occupational Health Program of 2023 >

On April 6, 2023, entrance ceremony of the graduate school for students in Asia International Occupational Health Program of 2023 was held with President Yoichi Ueta and Professor Masanori Hisaoka, Dean of Graduate School of Medical Science in attendance.

This year, we welcomed two international students for the program: one student from Mongolia and the other from Socialist Republic of Viet Nam.

President Ueta gave a warm welcome speech, mentioning the current circumstances of ceasing strict border measures for COVID-19, he wishes international students would make the most out of this special opportunity for them to learn to the utmost in international environment.

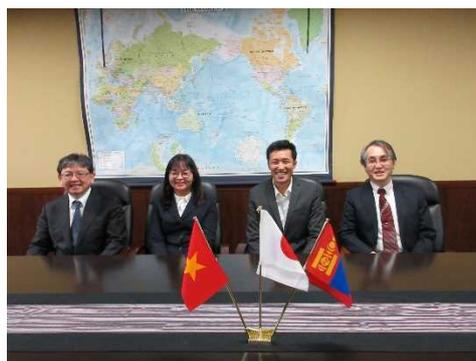

"Asia International Occupational Health Program" aims at

- Training international students with Japanese students to be an internationally successful researcher
- Improving quality of research activities under highly competitive environment
- Building a future research network for the international collaboration in the field of Occupational Health

This is the 15th year since we accepted the first group of students under this program in 2007.

Entrance ceremony

Group photo

