On Monday, December 1, the International Center organized a mini-symposium, inviting Prof. Jari Hakanen, a social psychologist from the Finnish Institute of Occupational Health (FIOH), with which our university has an academic exchange agreement. Prof. Hakanen delivered a lecture entitled “Well-being at Workplace – Research and Practice.” In addition, we were honored to welcome Prof. Akihito Shimazu from the Faculty of Policy Management, Keio University, who gave a special talk on “Development of the Workplace Loneliness Risk Chart.”

Faculty members and graduate students from UOEH also presented their own research, making this symposium a valuable opportunity for academic exchange and discussion for all participants to deepen their studies.
